Breakout 1.2 See Something, Say Something: Spotting the Warning Signs and What To Do (2:00 PM – 3:30 PM)

After many mass attacks, it becomes clear that people saw behavioral warning signs but either did not understand them or did not know what to do. While “See Something, Say Something” programs are effective in other spheres, many citizens do not know the signs, symbols and codes of violent extremism and, even if they do, they don’t know how to reach different types of professionals who might be able to help. Two working groups come together to help solve that problem. The Youth Red Flags working group is creating a resource for lay people, including parents and other family members, educators, fellow students and co-workers, to identify the red flags associated with a descent into violent extremism among young people. The resource will also identify common causes for the development of those behaviors and provide practical strategies across systems (e.g., schools, counseling and mental health facilities) to address those behaviors and their root causes. The Directory working group is compiling a comprehensive directory of all providers who work in the “anti-hate field,” indexed by specialty and geography, and available through a mobile app.

EVENING FILM SHOWINGS

A Showing of the Film REFUGE With Remarks by:

Chris Buckley, Afghanistan Veteran, Former White Supremacist, Founder of TRP (Trauma Recovery Program), interventionist and speaker at Parents For Peace. Arno Michaelis, Author and Speaker.

REFUGE is an award-winning feature-length documentary that follows a leader in a white nationalist hate group who finds healing from the people he once hated - a Muslim heart doctor and his town of refugees. Chris is a husband and father, a veteran, and until recently, a leader in the KKK. He started hating Muslims when the planes hit the Twin Towers on 9/11, but is forced to confront his hate when he receives a text from Muslim refugee, Heval.

REFUGE is set in the most diverse square mile in America - Clarkston, Georgia - and follows a Syrian Kurd, a former Klansman, and a town of refugees who seek belonging in an increasingly polarized and isolated America. Ultimately, REFUGE uncovers what is possible when we leave the security of our tribes and what is at stake for our country if we don't.

During this time when our society seems more polarized than ever before, how can people with opposing beliefs possibly connect with each other?

Compassion: simply bearing witness to suffering, without judgment, and without a political agenda.

REFUGE embodies this noble human quality, challenging us to think outside ideological boxes and to see ourselves in others. The organization Parents 4 Peace leverages compassion to provide support for families concerned about a loved one getting mixed up in violent extremism, and to guide individuals from hate to healing.

Through vivid storytelling and deep conversation, protagonists of REFUGE and experts from Parents 4 Peace will lead attendees on an interactive journey to realize the power of compassion after a screening of the award-winning film.

Participants will leave with improved skills to:

- Respond to aggression with compassion.
- Connect with people who have opposing political opinions.
- Create common ground for diverse groups.
- Cultivate inner peace to build resilience in their lives.

12:15 PM – 1:00 PM:

When white supremacist Wade Michael Page murdered seven people and wounded four in a Sikh Temple in Wisconsin in 2012, Pardeep Kaleka was devastated. This tragedy followed by suicide would be one of the deadliest mass-murder hate crimes committed in US History. One of the victims that day was Pardeep's father, Satwant Singh Kaleka. Meanwhile, Arno Michaelis, a former skinhead and founder of one of the largest racist skinhead organizations in the world, had spent years of his life committing terrible acts in the name of white power. When Arno heard about the attack, waves of anger, guilt and sadness washed over him, and he knew he had to take action and fight against the very crimes he used to commit. In the aftermath of the Oak Creek shooting, Pardeep reached out to Arno for answers. What would follow this meeting was a journey of two men, from different parts of the world who breached a great divide to find brotherhood and love. In a world that seems to be tearing itself at the seams, divided by identity, becoming more intolerant, xenophobic and spiritually ill, it is essential that we remain committed to compassion. This talk will explore the role of both communal and individual trauma and healing.

EVENING FILM SHOWINGS

A Showing of the Film The Cure For Hate – Bearing Witness To Auschwitz With Remarks by:

Tony McAleer, Author, The Cure For Hate – Bearing Witness To Auschwitz

In the Jewish tradition, tshuvah means “return”, and describes the return to God and our fellow human beings that is made possible through repentance for our wrongs.

Tony McAleer is a former Skinhead and Holocaust denier who went on to become a founding member of the anti-hate activist group Life After Hate. Profoundly aware and deeply ashamed of the lineage of hate he'd once promoted, Tony had long contemplated travelling to Auschwitz in the spirit of tshuvah - to bear witness to the inconceivable ravages of the Holocaust and deepen his personal work against the rise of extremist politics.

This project documents his profoundly personal journey of atonement to Auschwitz/Birkenau - exploring the conditions that allowed for the rise of fascism in 1930s Europe, shedding a unique light upon how men get into and out of violent extremist groups, and serving as a cautionary tale for our time that underscores the dangers in allowing hate to be left unchecked.

“I can't stress this enough, this film is something special and is not something you have ever experienced before. This film will move you...

one of the best I've seen in 2023.”

- Steve Kopian, Unseen Films

"A beautifully shot, well-directed film that... holds a substantial level of importance, not only about our past but our future.

4 1/2 Stars. "

- Chris Jones, Overly Honest Movie Reviews.

A riveting and deeply important film"

- Kathryn Spitz Cohan, Film Pittsburgh
